Mrs. Davis Selects Richmond as the Resting Place

OF OUR PRESIDENT, JEFFERSON DAVIS.

She Writes a Beautiful Letter Giving Her Decision in the Matter.

HER PERSONAL SACRIFICE REFERRED TO

Richmond's Unwavering Support in the Darkest Hours of the South's Defeat.

YIELDS TO WISHES OF THE MAJORITY.

Mrs. Davis Expresses the Hope That the States of the Confederacy Will Relinquish Their Cherished Plans for the Sake of Gratifying the Largest Number of the Veterans of the South Who Have Urged Eichmond as the Proper Place for Him Who Loved Them and Labored for Their Glory.

NEW YORK, July 12 .- [Special.] - Mrs. Davis, the widow of the late President Jefferson | vene. Davis, who has been sojourning at New York
Hotel in this city for some time past, in a letter forwarded to the citizens of Richmond today states that after much deliberation, she has decided to give Virginia the care of her hus-Davis, who has been sojourning at New York decided to give Virginia the care of her husban's body. The letter is as follows: To the Veteransand People of the Southern

After much anxious thought I have finally decided to give to Virginia the care of my husband's mortal body, and feel that my reasons should be made public as he was in many senses the property of the whole

Immediately after the death of ex-President Jefferson Davis Louisiana expressed her de-sire to keep his hallowed remains for all time, but she claims only the right to guard him un-til some permanent place could be selected for him and

GUARDED THE SACRED CLAY.

The military organizations of New Ocleans bore him with fillal crief to the tomb of the Army of Northern Virginia, where they have guarded him by night and day for eighteen months, and the gratitude of my children and myself is too great for words.

Lasked a year for consideration, and control.

I asked a year for consideration and consultation with my family. Eighteen months have nearly expired, and I feel that the matter should be decided and set at rest now.

Mississippi claimed preference, because Mr. Davis belonged to her by right of the seventy-citizen, comrade in arms, Congressional representative, Senator, general in thief and President, she felt her's to be the first claim.

Assoning remembered that within her borders he was elected President of the Control-erate States there he was inaugurated; that Montgomery had been the first empiral and that from her lips had issued the first great invitation to break the silence which he had observed since our defeat; that she received him with conquerors, but was never before accorded to a disfranch sed citizen, powerless to give aid newed the request because his rather had been long a citizen of the State. There the ex-President had received the same royal courtesy which Ala ama had extended, and lastly she pleaded her great love for him as a reason for granting the request.

Kentucky expressed her pride in being the State of his birth, and urged her claims.

VIRGINIA'S CLAIM. Virginia asked for his honored remains be-cause the most strenuous efforts of his life had been made upon her soil and in defeuse of Richmond as the capital of the Con-federate States. At short intervals throughout the last eighteen mouths she has throughout the last eighteen months she has renewed her tender insistance that he should rest among the dead of all the States who fell in defense of the Confederacy. She urged the fact that he did not in the fullness of his fame belong exclusively to any part of the country. Every hillside about Richmond would tell of the various resistance which he initiated and directed with tipless yicharce as chief masisdirected with tireless vigilance as chief magis-trate; that there he received generous and unwavering support in the darkest hour of our unfortunate defeat.

MRS, DAVIS' SACRIFICE. All these claims have touched my heart, and contended together for the mastery. and contended together for the mastery. It has been hard to give up the hope of dwelling near my husband's resting place in Mississippi, where my home and interests are, but unfortunately Beauvoir is on the coast of the Mexican gulf, and on a peninsula not over a mile wide, and half a mile of shallow water, with submerged stumps of large trees, show that the sea has been steadily encroaching on the shore for many years.

feel therefore that as the monument is for I feel therefore that as the monument is for all time it would not be wise to place it there and I submit to the personal sacrifice with the hope that the States of the Confederacy will also relinquish cherished plans for the sake of gratifying the majority of the veterans who have written countless letters to me from each of the before-mentioned States to urge Richmond as the proper place for the grave of him who loved them all and labored for their glory with all his might during the heat and burden of the days granted to bim here.

RECIVER YARDLEY'S REPORT.

An Accompanying Schedule Gives the Assets of the Bank-Examiner Drew Resigns.

Washington, D. C., July 11,-The report of Hon. Robert M. Yardley, receiver of the Keystone National Bank of Philadelphia, received by the Comptroller of the Currency on the 27th of June, is accompanied with schodnles, in which the assets of the bank are classified as they existed at the date of its suspension. The total assets amounted to $1.726.511.41, of which $575.600.02 are estimated "good," $996,992.48 "doubtful" and $153.912.91 "worthless." This is simply the estimate of the receiver and will be susceptible of modification as the liquidation of the affairs of the trust progresses. The liabilities amounted to the sum of $1.735,577.25. This does not include due bills amounting to $925,000 alleged to have been issued to John Bardsley, late city treasures.

The Comptroller has made an assessment of $500,000 on the shareholders of the bank on account of their individual liability being 100 per cent of the par value of the stock, payable August 11, 1891, and has directed the receiver to take all necessary proceedings for its col-

CHARGES AGAINST A TENNESSEE OFFICIAL. NASHVILLE, TENN., July 11 .- The sensation Nashville, Tean, July II.—The sensation of the hour in Tennessee's capital is charges against State-Comptroller Allen of retaining commissions to which he is not entitled and placing State money in bank to his account. The Legislature in 1887 made a law allowing the State Comptroller 1½ per cent. of all railroad tax for collecting the same, but it is claimed the law was repealed in 1889. Nevertheless Allen has continued to deduct the commission. He has placed the money collected in his own name, which eminent local lected in his own name, which eminent local authority declare is in violation of the State law, which compels him to give all collec-tions of money to the Treasurer. Mr. Allen denies having done wrong. A considerable amount of money is involved.

REGUN WITH EARLY PRAYER.

The Third Day's Session of the Christian Endenver Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., July 11.—This is the third day of the great International Convention of Christian Endeavor. The proceedings of the day were inaugurated at 6.30 o'clock this morning with a prayer meeting con-ducted by Miss Grace Livingston, of Winter Park, Fla. At a o'clock the delegates met in regular business session, and after the usual religious exercises reports from the world-wide field were made by General-Secretary Baer. lie gave some interesting details of the growth of the movement in England, and presented particularly encouraging figures from Japan. On February 2d the Christian Endeavor societies in that country celebrated their decennial anniversary of the first society, meetings being held at Kobae, Chayama, Kumatoma and Kyoto. The native churches are also organizing the young people into Christian Endeavor societies. The growth of the movement in Australian colonies was also

WAR WITH AFRICA IMMINENT

Strained Relations Between Britain and the South African Republic.

THE IRISH STRUGGLE NEARING AN END.

Parnell's Recent Crushing Defeat a Vital One-The Conservative Party Will Lose Its Leader-Foreign Affairs.

[Copyright Cable to The Times.] London, July 11.-There can be no question that during the last few weeks the relations between the South African republic and the British Government have been exceedingly strained; nor can there be any doubt that the popular feeling among the burghers of the Transvaal has been one of strong and, from their point of view, justifiable indigna-tion at the unfriendly and captions spirit dis-played by the British High Commissioner.

This unfriendliness is not a thing of yester-day. In August last the negotiations about the Swaziland convention were handled with unnecessary severity, when the same, aye, even better, result could have been attained by the display of a more generous and supreeven better, result could have been attained by the display of a more generous and appre-ciative spirit on the part of Sir Henry Lock. The common conviction then was that it was not really the desire of Her Majesty's Govern-ment that any unfriendliness should be shown in the negotiations, and that the exhibition of a horsh and threatening demeanor was owing partly to the influence exercised by the domi-noering temper of the Premier of Cape Col-ony. Mr. Cecil Rh des. The same cause is now assigned for the strained relations existing at the present moment.

THE GREAT BORE "TREK" The scheme of a great Boer "TREE," recently formulated for the purpose of founding a northern republic, alarmed the British South African Chartered Company, and strenuous efforts were at once made by Mr. Rhodes not to stop the "trek" at all, but to make it conditioned on the acceptance of the authority of the company, almost completely ignoring the fact that the British imperial authority was conversed in such a movement, and that concerned in such a movement, and that the British Government, which had declared the territory to be a sphere of British influence, might have something to say in the matter. Mr. Rhodes said: "You shall all come into the country—from the Cape colony, from the free State, from the Transvard—so long as you acknowledge the authorite of the company. You shall all have farms, and we will divide up Mashonaland in your behalf." By this policy Mr. Rhodes succeeded in dividing the Dutch population in South Africa against itself, and instead of five thousand well-armed men taking part in clared the territory to be a sphere of British five thousand well-armed men taking part in the 'trek" a little over one hundred crossed the Limpopo, and of course were driven back by the chartered company's armed police and soldiers.

POPULAR FEELING IN THEIR FAVOR.

Their mission, however, was in a measure attained, for many of those who had been bought over by land deeds and promises of office have become alarmed at the reaction of popular feeling in favor of the 'trekers' and have returned their gifts to the chartered company. The burghers in the Transvaling—in fact a good many British residents of South Africa—have been unable to comprehend the process by which a company of private speculators could lay claim to the control of a country over which British authority trol of a country over which British authority has never been established, and which has been frequented by burghers of the South African Republic for forty years.

Now the imperial question has cropped up behind the question of the chartered company's rights. The high commissioner, seeing that the claims of the chartered company fail to inspire respect, has taken up the ground that the country beyond the Limpopo is British tarritory in order to prevent another British territory in order to prevent at and more formidable "trek." It is such decand more formidable tree. It is such declarations as these that have aroused the strongest indignation of members of the Volksraad, and have tended to revive the recellection of old gradges which were beginning to be forgotten. The fact is they have left a state of things which contains all the possibilities of a destructive and disastrous war, and which is tending to paralyze industry throughout the whole of South Africa.

ME, PARNELL'S DEFEAT. ME, PARNELL'S DEFEAT.

The overwhelming defeat of Mr. Farnell still continues to be discussed by all classes of politicians. Carlow was one of Mr. Parnell's strongholds. He fought there on more advantageous terms than he could have had in any other Irish rural constituency except Westwicklow or Northmeath. This made the fight one of unusual interest. The two victories gained over Mr. Parnell's hattailons by the home-rules of Kilkenny and North Sligo, nearly settled the struggle, and but for the unfortunate Boulogne negotiations little would daye remained to be done to bring the disturber to his knees.

would dave remained to be done to bring the disturber to his knees.

The victory at Carlow was a crushing disaster to Parnell. His failure there leaves him no expectation to win elsewhere, as his followers have now lost heart, and many of them are on the point of going over to the McCarthyites. The Carlow election has greatly shortened the length of time during which Irishmen will be engaged in this miserable struggle. In Ireland charges and counter charges still ring in the air. "Traitor" and "Knave" and like epithets are the ordinary expressions used to denote differences of expressions used to denote differences of opinion on political questions, and on the whole Irishmen have a lively time of it with the young lions on both sides.

ISAAC BUTT'S ADMONITION Poor Isaac Butt foresaw the "vulgar brawl" Poor issae Butt foresaw the vingar orawing and warned the Irish people that it was coming. Irishmen are paying heavily for their melodrama. Tipperary feels the jinch most, perhaps but all over the country there are miserable victims to-day lamenting the "glorious victories" and the "loud huzzas" of two years ago. For ten years the politicians were worshipped and the ordinary quiet-glong people were gagged. Now the politicians are having a hot time of it, and the quiet people are let alone. It is decidedly a change for the better. No one takes the wild charges and counter-charges seriously. They are discounted very liberally by all men who, in the least, use their heads and intelligence. But one undoubted result of these charges is this: No money comes from America, and very little from Ireland to either wing. This, too, is not an unmixed evil. Money has corrupted the movement. A little healthy weeding out of sunshine statesmen and patriots would be a blessing, and the process goes on visible enough. The benches of Parliament give proof. and warned the Irish people that it was com-

It now declares that the future is dark and gloomy at best, but that at all events Parnell must be dropped, and an effort must be made to induce Dillon to lead the National party. salutes, and the results were perfectly satisfactory. This is the first time smokeless powder has been used on so large a scale in public in England, and the novelty aroused much interest. The Kaiser seemed much pleased at the review and was very complimentary, but he is quite a diple mat, and it does not follow that he was inwardly impressed by the affair, it is probable that a much more pouring and precise array of citizen soldiery would have to be produced before the Emperor would be prevailed upon to give up his prejudice against the volunteer system. He and his advisers have always held views on this subject oppossed to those of the British war officials. There is not a German officer, nor, in oppossed to those of the British war officials. There is not a German officer, nor, in fact, any foreign staff officer, who attaches more than subordinate importance to England's half trained and ill led militia. Mr. Stanhope, Secretary of State for War, is responsible for the failure of the review in point of numbers. The War Office did not defray the whole of the expenses incurred, and consequently the aview was an enormous strain sequently the review was an enormous strain upon the finances of the corps which took part in it. Many were undoubtedly deterred from coming out on this account.

THE KAISER'S ENERGY AND ACTIVITY.

The longer the Emperor stays in England the more wonder is manifested at his energy and activity. The English people cannot get used to the spectable of royalty getting up before sunrise and speeding fiery steeds in the park, hurrying hither and thither with vehemence all day, reviewing and sight-seeing. It is a great change from the spectacle of club lounging and baccarat playing to which they have been accustomed. The Kaiser has changed his uniform on an average of three times a day since his arrival, and has reviewed something or inspected something every few hours. His restlessness does not seem to be feverish, but is the natural expression of strength and ambition. The newspapers are comparing the welcomes extended to the Kaiser and his father, the late Emperor Frederick. When the latter visited England his greeting was far less demonstrative than that being accorded his successor on the German throne. Still, Frederick was greatly pleased with the warmth of his reception. THE KAISER'S ENERGY AND ACTIVITY.

MINISTER LINCOLN'S ABSENCE.

United States Minister Lincoln was the only United States Minister Lincoln was the only diplomat absent from the Guild Hall on the occasion of the Kaiser's reception by the Lord Mayor last night. The reason for his non-attendance is not given out, but whatever it is, the fact of his not appearing puts a quietus on the rumor that the reason for his not attending the Frince of Wales' garden party in honer of the Emperor was that the Tranby Croft people, among whom the baccarat scandal originated, were invited guests.

MR, SPURGEON VERY LOW. Mr. Spurgeon is very low to-night and hope of his recovery is almost abandoned. Shoals of telegrams and letters of inquiry and sympathy are constantly coming in. (By Cable to The Times.) LONDON, July 11 .- The Emperor of Germany remained at the state ball given at Buckingham Palace until 3 o'clock this morning. At 8 o'clock the Emperor arose, break-fasted and attended to business with his sec-retaries. Shortly before noon, accompanied by the Empress and by the Dukes of Edinjoyed a good health-giving ride in Kotten Row, after which he inspected the yoemen of the guard. There were also present at this luncheon a distinguished company, which included Lord and Lady Salishury. The Emperor and Empress and their suites at 3 o'clock in the afternoon left London by rail for Wimbledon station. From that point the route to the parade ground was lavishly the route to the parate ground was trained decorated with flags and flowers, reaching in almost endless profusion from the station to the tall flagstaff near the reviewing stand, from the top of which the imperial standard of Germany was proudly waving in piace of the British standard.

Early in the morning the British volunteer regiments and the regiments of regulars detailed to assist in the parade began to arrive at Wimbledon from all directions. Some of the regulars and detachments from many of the volunteer corps had detailed men yesterday to proceed to Wimbledon in advance of their respective main bodies in order to prepare camp, kitchens, &c., for the refreshment of the men who were to take part in to-day's of the men who were to take part in to-day's

The police force, naturally, was represented at Wimbledon Common hours before noon, and their number was constantly augmented until a small army of blue coats had gathered upon the scene. But there was very little work for them to do until the troops began to arrive in force, and then the policemen had their hands full in clearing the common and driving the spectators back to certain boundaries determined upon by the military authorities.

beundaries determined upon by the military authorities.

The regiments which were among the first to arrive did so in a smart, soldier-like manner. It was evident at a glane that their commanding officers had done their utmost to turn out the "citizen soldier," in as clean cut and business-like manner as possible. The men themselves appeared to have seconded their officers' endeavors to the utmost of their ability and seemed to be determined to make as good a showing as they could before the Emperor, who had been reported to have remarked that he did not care to see "tradesmen masquerading as soldiers."

In any case there was no denying that some of the first volunteer regiments to reach Wimbledon Common did so in a manner which reflected credit upon all concerned. Their equipments were complete, in good order, and nicely pipe-clayed, burnished or scaped. The men stepped forward lightly, jauntily and well together to the sound of fife and drum, or enlivened by the music of their bands, and though the "tradesmen" may have looked a little too "band boxy" for actual warfare, still there was the making of good defensive (home fighting) regiments among them.

Real Cause of Healey's Bitterness. [By Cable to The Times.]

IBy Cable to The Times.)

London, July 12.—The Carlow election has not allayed any of the bitterness between the two Irish factions. It is said that John Clancy, the sub-sheriff of Dublin, has threatened to punish Tim Healey for his foul abuse of a woman, meaning Mrs. Parnell, and that an encounter between the two is not unlikely. Healey now alludes to Mrs. Parnell as "Kitty O'Parnell," and he seldom mentions Parnell without adding some vulgar allusion to his wife. The Parnellites say there is a story regarding Healey's abuse of Mrs. Paynell which will make a sensation, if ever made public.
